

831 COLUMBIA WHEAT
LARGEST LOT YESTERDAY IN THE HISTORY OF THE MARKET.
ESTIMATED VALUE, $396,110.
MADE INTO ONE TRAIN IT WOULD BE 6 1/2 MILES LONG.

Would Require Twenty-five Engines to Pull the Train—Exceeded by 151 Cars Combined Receipts of Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Louis, Duluth.

Receipts of wheat at Kansas City yesterday were the largest in the history of this market and exceeded by 151 cars, or nearly 100,000 bushels, valued at $2,500, the combined total receipts yesterday of the four great wheat markets of Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Duluth.

There were 831 cars of wheat on the Kansas City market yesterday, eight more than ever before. These cars contained approximately 100,000 bushels of wheat, valued at $2,500, or an average price of 25 cents a bushel, or about $2,500, or enough to buy the site for and build two Kansas City convention halls on the plains proposed, with $2,500 remaining over.

These 831 cars, with twenty-five engines to draw them, would make a train over six and one-half miles in length. The cars were worth about $100,000, or approximately the value of the wheat they contained. If the returns from this wheat were distributed equally among the residents of Kansas City, each man, woman and child would receive $234; each family of five would be given a comfortable living for a week.

And yet the receipts of wheat at this market yesterday were not the largest of the season. The receipts of wheat at Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Duluth were larger than at Kansas City. The receipts at Chicago were 1,000 cars, at St. Louis 1,000 cars, at Minneapolis 1,000 cars, and at Duluth 1,000 cars.

The figures given do not take into account the wheat which has been shipped from Kansas City to other markets. The 831 cars are all consigned to Kansas City. No record has been had of the wheat which has been shipped through and which figures only in helping to back the railroad yards here, North of the city, and which are now being loaded at Chicago, St. Louis, etc., which were furnished these markets by Kansas City and which are now being loaded at Chicago, St. Louis, etc., which were furnished these markets by Kansas City and which are now being loaded at Chicago, St. Louis, etc.

The enormous receipts of grain the day before yesterday, and there were about half as many cars in the yards here last night as there were yesterday. The receipts of grain at Kansas City yesterday were 831 cars, or nearly 100,000 bushels, valued at $2,500, or an average price of 25 cents a bushel, or about $2,500, or enough to buy the site for and build two Kansas City convention halls on the plains proposed, with $2,500 remaining over.
